

CAMPILLOS

ENDIVE

Campillos is a vigorous grower of the curled type. This variety is most suitable for early winter production in those areas where a mild winter is present (Mediterranean conditions). Campillos can survive some degrees of night frost, but not to severe winter conditions. Variety has strong bolting tolerance. The head is dense and gives a fine leaf structure and can be used both for fresh as for industry for mixed salad purposes.

Varieties perform differently under different climatic conditions, and are usually only suitable for specific markets. For more elaborate information about this variety in a specific market, visit the assortments on our country websites, via www.bejo.com/countries. Our local crop specialists are happy to give additional tailor-made advise.